COMMENTS OF THE
THE WALT DISNEY COMPANY AND ESPN, INC.

The Walt Disney Company and ESPN, Inc.¹ hereby respond to the above-referenced *Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (NPRM)*² regarding implementation of the video description provisions of the “Twenty-First Century Communications and Video Accessibility Act of 2010” (the CVAA).³ The video description section of the CVAA reinstates (with certain modifications) the video description regulations originally established by the Commission in 2000.⁴ These Comments are being filed primarily to serve as Notice that ESPN is exempted from the video description requirement because ESPN does not provide, on average, at least 50 hours per quarter of prime-time non-exempt programming, as currently proposed to be defined by the FCC in the NPRM. In addition, as a member of both the National Association of Broadcasters (NAB) and the National Cable Telecommunications Association (NCTA), Disney generally supports the Comments filed and arguments made by those two trade associations in this proceeding.

ESPN IS EXEMPT FROM THE VIDEO DESCRIPTION REQUIREMENT

As noted by the FCC in the NPRM, the CVAA requires that MVPDs with 50,000 or more subscribers provide 50 hours per calendar quarter of video-described prime-time and/or children's programming on each of the top five non-broadcast networks that they carry. Although the FCC further notes that its staff analysis of Nielsen data concluded that those five top non-broadcast networks include ESPN, the FCC proceeds to clarify that some of the top five networks may be exempt from the video description requirement. As required by the CVAA, the FCC proposed to "explicitly exclude from the top five any non-broadcast network that does not provide, on average, at least 50 hours per quarter of prime-time non-exempt programming, i.e., programming that is not live or near-live." NPRM at Para. 12. The FCC further proposed to define "near-live" programming as "programming performed and recorded less than 24 hours prior to the time it is first aired." NPRM at Para. 21.⁵

ESPN's programming is well-known to contain a mixture of live sporting events, live studio sports reporting shows, and replays of very-recently taped studio sports programs. This programming includes, among other things the NFL, the NBA, MLB, ⁵ Disney and ESPN agree with comments filed in this proceeding, including those filed by NCTA and NAB, that this proposed definition is too restrictive. However, for the purpose of confirming ESPN's exempt status, ESPN applied this definition as proposed.

College Football and College Basketball. ESPN's award-winning studio programming includes Sports Center, Around the Horn, Jim Rome is Burning, Outside the Lines, Baseball Tonight and PTI. Given this mixture of live and studio nearly-live programming (much of which has a significant audio component), ESPN is exactly the type of network that the CVAA intended to exempt.

In preparation for this filing, ESPN reviewed its programming line-up for the past nine quarters, from January 1, 2009 through March 31, 2011. As part of this process, ESPN categorized its prime-time content (as defined by the FCC) as to whether it was “live or near-live,” as proposed to be defined by the FCC.⁶ Based on this careful review, and as further detailed in the attached Affidavit, ESPN found that for every one of the past nine quarters, ESPN did not air more than 50 hours of non-exempt (i.e., live or near-live) programming during prime-time. In addition, and as requested by the FCC, attached to these Comments are a few illustrative programming schedules from this past month, April 2011, that provide additional details with respect to ESPN's programming schedule.⁷ Therefore, ESPN submits that it is clearly exempt from the video description requirement as proposed by the FCC.

In addition, as noted above, Disney supports the arguments contained in Comments filed in this proceeding on behalf of NCTA and NAB. In particular, Disney agrees that the FCC should retain the “program-related conflict” exemption. As described in detail in the NCTA Comments, there will remain conflicts between the carriage of video description and Spanish-language audio for some time. Given these conflicts, Disney submits that operators (and thus programmers) should have the flexibility to choose whether repeats and subsequent airings contain video description or Spanish-language audio. Such an exemption is particularly important for non-broadcast networks like Disney Channel because Disney Channel airs a significant number of repeats of its popular children's and family programming. Disney Channel would like to ensure that its programming is accessible by both the visually-impaired and the Spanish-speaking communities. Disney submits that maintaining the program-related conflict exemption is needed to preserve programmers' flexibility in this regard.

⁶ As noted above, ESPN applied the FCC's proposed definition of near-live, even though Disney and ESPN agree with other commenters that that the proposed definition is too restrictive.

⁷ In addition to the attached Affidavit and attached illustrative programming schedules, ESPN will maintain the underlying documentation that it generated to confirm its exempt status. Given that ESPN clearly meets the threshold, ESPN is not submitting that documentation into the record.

CONCLUSION

As discussed above, Disney supports the Comments filed in this proceeding by NCTA and NAB and, in particular, the need for flexibility to permit programmers to choose whether to air subsequent airings of programs with Spanish-language audio or video description. In addition, as described above and in the attached Affidavit, ESPN submits that it clearly is exempt from the video description requirement and is filing these Comments as Notice of ESPN's exempt status.

Respectfully submitted,

AFFIDAVIT OF KEN GORDON

I, Ken Gordon, serve as Counsel for ESPN. In this capacity, I have recently overseen the review of ESPN's programming schedule for the past nine quarters (from January 2009 through March 31, 2011) to confirm ESPN's exempt status for the purpose of the FCC's proposed video description rules.

I asked ESPN employees with access to the schedule for ESPN over the past nine quarters to review ESPN's prime-time schedules¹ during that time-frame and to categorize the programming into categories that reflect the FCC's proposed definition of live and near-live programming, as contained in the FCC's Notice of Proposed Rulemaking regarding Video Description (released March 3, 2011). This review of ESPN's schedule over this time frame concluded that, for every one of the past nine quarters, ESPN did not air more than 50 hours of live or near-live programming during prime-time (again, using the definitions of near-live, as proposed by the FCC in its NPRM).

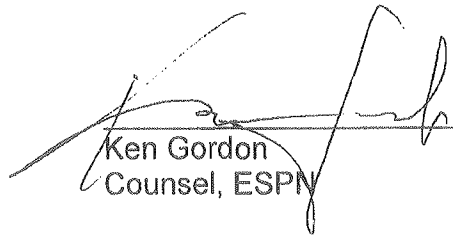

ESPN's analysis found that the number of hours of non-exempt programming ranged from 18.4 hours per quarter to 42.5 hours per quarter, with all quarters well below the 50 hours per quarter threshold. The specific findings by quarter are listed below:

1Q09	20.8 hours
2Q09	26.8 hours
3Q09	42.5 hours

¹ ESPN used the definition of prime-time as used by the FCC at footnote 22 of the NPRM, namely 8-11 pm Monday through Saturday and 7-11 pm on Sunday.

4Q09	23.5 hours
1Q10	27.4 hours
2Q10	32.5 hours
3Q10	28.9 hours
4Q10	31.2 hours
1Q11	18.4 hours

I hereby declare, under penalty of perjury, that, to the best of my knowledge, information and belief, all of the factual information contained herein is accurate and complete.

Ken Gordon
